Adding Machine Wanted
Dante in Chicago
Americans in Paris
The 24-Ounce Dress

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1923, by the Star Company.

DOES ANYBODY make a simple, inexpensive adding machine that would let millions of wives add their household bills without headache or uncertainty? If such a machine doesn't exist, somebody should manufacture it. It would be blessed also by husbands.

It is humiliating for them to add up the same bill three different ways, thus proving to their wives that they are not business men, whatever else they may be.

YOU READ DANTEE's description of miserable creatures in hell, tearing with teeth at each other's skulls, and ask: "How could any imagination, even Dante's, conceive such horror?" But what one can imagine, another can do. Bernard Grant and Walter Krauser were locked in the "bull pen" of Chicago's prison. Grant is under sentence to be hanged for murder; Krauser, his accomplice, once convicted, had obtained a new trial. Krauser drew a knife and, before the guards could stop him, had stabbed Grant five times, thus making Krauser's trip to the gallows certain.

DANTE'S PICTURE of the eternally damned, adding to each other's torture, or his description of himself pulling hair from the head of a miserable sinner that refused to tell his name, is no more horrible than that scene in the Chicago prison.

GRANT, the man stabbed, was instantly attended by surgeons, but he pushed them away, turned his body, and would not permit blood transfusion. "Let me alone; you want to save me only to have me swing; let me die," he died yesterday.

WHATSOEVER HAPPENS, some Americans find joy in life. The great week of racing at Antwerp, near Paris, began yesterday. Americans were there with their fine dresses, jewelry, and the money that is welcome everywhere in Europe, even if the Americans are not quite so welcome.

To show how representative the big crowd of Americans was at Antwerp, it is only necessary to say that it included Frank A. Munsey and "Eddie" Cantor, representing statesmanship and wild joy.

If it hurts your feelings that the French must send us back some dollars, it may comfort you to know that Americans will take to Paris at least as many dollars as the French send back to us.

PROOF THAT the complete costume of modern woman, including dress, stockings, shoes and underwear, may weigh as little as 24 ounces causes the virtuous to grieve. But, even as woman in her changing moods cuts off her dress and her stockings, there may be comfort in the new-leeked dress is partly justified by this fact, to which your doctor will testify: "Cancer strikes women more often than men, and cancer of the breast, dreadfully frequent in civilized countries, is quite unknown among female savages that wear no clothing above the waist. Savage seems to keep cancer away."

STOCKS WERE a little weak yesterday; corn and wheat also. Better weather, less talk of "fruit," meaning better crops, and also lower prices.

French and Belgian francs and Italian lire were very low. President Coolidge's talk about collecting the war debts sets European currency "all of a tremble."

THE FRENCH are as brave today as they were in old days when Latour d'Auvergne warned his comrades with loud shouts, despite of the English square pointing at his breast; when Laifre, fighting the huge bear, arose, "Lord, I do not ask you to help

FIRST OF PRESIDENTIAL PARTY AT MARBLEHEAD; VISITORS PACK TOWN

To the accompaniment of shrieks from fagboys, and other nautical noise-making instruments, the presidential yacht Mayflower forged majestically into Marblehead bay today.

While the assembled fleet of the Eastern Yacht Club, of which President Coolidge is a member, kept up a tremendous din of welcome, the graceful craft picked up her new moorings.

The Mayflower was a bit behind schedule. She had to stop at Long Island, in Boston Harbor, to take on coal. While there she took a little more time to unload to a Navy Yard lighter a small truck to be used to pick up supplies for the ship while she is here.

Although moved some distance out, the Mayflower was plainly visible from shore, where a throng

IN 'BROWN DERBY' MURDER POSITIVELY ON EX-CONVICT

Frank Corey of Worcester, according to Captain Goodwin of the Lagrange street police station, was picked from a lineup of men today by several persons and identified as a man who frequented the Hotel Hollis immediately preceding the murder of Mrs. Mary Price.

All of those who made the identifications were from the hotel, where Mrs. Price, ward-room mistress of "The Brown Derby," was slain in her bed early in the morning of May 31.

The identifications today and many heated scrabbles, on Corey's face are regarded by the police as two strong links in the chain of evidence being forged against the accused slayer.

Corey, alias Frank Mullins, also known as Frank Corbitt, who was brought to Boston following his arrest in Worcester, was formally arraigned on a murder charge, today.

He is charged by the police with brutally attacking Mrs. Price in her room in the Hotel Hollis, on Tremont street, and after a desperate struggle, smothering the woman to death by shoving her face into the pillow of the bed, after which he pulled the body of more than $30 and fled.

Underneath the finger nails of the slain woman the medical examiner found long drops of skin which she had scratched from her forehead during the death struggle.

When Corey, a former convict in

Middleboro, June 23 (A.P.)—The 431 Hymus express from Boston was delayed about seven hours this morning when the rear truck of the engine tender left the rail.

BELIEVE CHAIN POOL VICTIM KILLED SELF

Robert R. Martin, twenty-seven, of No. 632 Broad street, East Weymouth, identified as the man found dead in the chain pool at Franklin Park, was declared today to be left-handed, and the evidence was thereby greatly strengthened.

C. H. Remberg, associate of Martin in the chain pool case at Weymouth, where Martin had been assigned to manage, told the Boston Evening American that the manager used his left hand for practically every service, including swimming.

Police officials, while inclined to the belief that Martin was a suicide, were puzzled by the fact that the bullet which ended his life left a wound in the right side of his head.

At the general office of the chain pool case, where he was employed, it was said today that Martin deposited $200 in cash as a bond at the time he was employed by the company.

Several weeks ago he asked for the loan of half this amount, explaining that his son's body had

HAWK PLODS WEARY WAY BACK TO HILLS

Hub Doctor Decries Use of Milk as Food For Humans

GIVES BATTLE TO HUG; TAKES HIS GUN

A gross violation of the rules and regulations governing holdups was observed today on the part of Karakam Krokghlin of Roxbury and there is every possibility that the Association of Thugs and Highwaymen may have his case called to its attention.

Whereas the laws of holdup etiquette call for submission on the part of the victim, Karakam gave every evidence today in his store at No. 418 Dudley street, that not only had he never read the volume, but never had even heard of it.

Of all the fruit in Karakam's fruit store, the holdup men collected $18 from the proprietor's trousers pocket, but he paid for it in excitement and the loss of his gun, valuing Karakam's defeat down to about $2.45.

Karakam was alone with his oranges and pineapples and strawberries—his wife, he said, has some business—when his tailor called and presented his compliments—and the caller was rebuffed.

The compliments asked like a gun to Karakam and eddy enough it was a gun.

To the victor's request for largesse, Karakam handed over his $18—this being the first step in his own feeling of submission to the cave and feeding of holdup men.

Then he was forced into the back room and the gunman proceeded to rifle Karakam's back, behind him. Right here, Karakam's ignorance of holdup etiquette came into play.

He snarled with his guest—snarled so violently and became so boorish that he even took the gun away from his visitor, who clutched with him.

They rolled out through the store into the street and dashed the gutter. A shot reverberated from the struggle and through the streets of Roxbury.

As if reminded of something he had forgotten at home—maybe he had left the light burning in the cellar—the holdup man scrambled up and went away from there.

Karakam scrambled up, too, and went to pursue, firing another shot as he pounded along in the vain chase. The holdup man got away, but he was grateful even for that.

Despite his busy moments, Karakam had time enough to observe that the thug was 28 to 30 years old, five feet seven inches tall, weighing 45 pounds, with light complexion and red hair, and that he wore a blue coat, khaki trousers and a light gray cap.

WHEN CUPID LIVED FOR DAN AND JUNE

Once love ruled the lives of Dan O. Caswell and his Boston bride, June Caswell of the Folies, as the photograph would indicate, but now he's dead and as a consequence her plans to file suit for divorce have been dropped. The photograph shows them just at the time of their Boston honeymoon.

CASWELL DIES FIRST CALL FOR 1925 BATHING BEAUTIES

The death of "Dapper Dan" Caswell, distinguished here to millions, has halted the plans of his Boston girl wife, the former June Caswell of the Folies, to divorce her young spendthrift husband.

Parted from June, divorced from his first wife, Jessie Reed, another Folies beauty, the boy who had spent a fortune on beautiful women amid the night lights of Broadway, nevertheless loved to the very end the girl with whom he had spent a blissful honeymoon in a little Back Bay apartment.

In the delirium of his last moments, wasted by typhoid pneumonia, the boy—he was still a lad at twenty-six years—called in vain from his deathbed in St. Luke's Hospital, New York, for his wife.

Only his mother was at the bedside, a mother whose love remained steadfast despite his preference for the primrose path.

June Caswell did not hear of his death until several hours later.

Now the Boston girl is in line for a share of the fortune that her husband's parents had tied up as securely in a trust fund that he was able to spend only its comparatively meagre income.

Several months ago, Miss Caswell, from her home here, announced that she was through—that she could not reform young Caswell and she would no longer try.

As for as is known, however, a divorce suit was never entered.

For four years, from the time he was a student at Yale, Caswell figured in the newspaper headlines of the country.

It was while coming to Boston from New Haven four years ago that young Caswell accidentally met Miss Reed, who was also traveling to Boston. Up until that time Caswell's reputation as a spendthrift had been confined to his home town of Cleveland and the Yale campus.

Two days later, Caswell and the chorus girl were married at Pawtucket, R.I.

Then Caswell met Miss Caswell, who left the St. Roch street apartment of her parents in Boston to join the Ziegfeld chorus.

Two years ago, Caswell obtained a divorce from Jessie Reed, and almost immediately he was married to the Boston girl, Miss Caswell, gave up her stage career and the couple moved to an apartment in Cambridge.

Last Fall, Caswell was taken seriously ill. His constitution shattered by his method of living, he collapsed and for weeks was confined in a private hospital in New York.

June Caswell became reconciled. She went to her husband's bedside and remained with him until he recovered.

GOOD ONLY KIDNAPER FOR BABY, BROKE AND HE SAYS FOOTSOKE

Sees Connection Between It and Growth of Child Diseases

New York, June 23 (A.P.)—The medical profession has some doubt as to the real value of milk as an adult food.

Dr. John P. Sutherland, former dean of the Boston University School of Medicine, declared today in an address at the eighty-first annual convention of the American Institute of Homoeopathy.

"In fact," he said, "animal milk may not be the ideal food and its use may be more injurious than beneficial to mankind."

Dr. Sutherland's general conclusion was that milk was intended to serve as a food only during infancy, that the milk of one species was not intended to be used by another species, except when closely related, and that milk would not be used as food by the adult.

"Given a more appropriate food than milk," Dr. Sutherland declared, "the mental power of the species would be materially improved."

He saw some connection between the prevalence of infantile diseases, the prevalence of child diseases, the number of weak-minded children to the substitution of cow's milk for mother's milk as food for the growing child.

Dr. Sutherland declared: "The mental power of the species would be materially improved."

EPISCOPALIANS MEETING AT WELLESLEY

Bishop Slattery Welcomes Biggest Delegation in History of Church

The twenty conference of divines and lay workers of the Episcopal Church in New England and the Northern Atlantic States, now underway at Wellesley, is regarded as the most successful conference in the history of the church.

There are more than 100 men and women at the conference, many of them having taken up their temporary abode in the dormitories of Tower Court and Clinton Hall.

The Rt. Rev. Edward M. Parker, Bishop of New Hampshire, presided at the formal opening. The Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slattery, bishop of Massachusetts, welcomed the delegates on behalf of his diocese.

The Rev. Julius A. Schmitt, chairman of the conference, at the first annual session, stressed the need for service. "The object of life," he said, "is greater than the living. The object of this conference is much more important than its subject."

"The church has a part in building the world, which, particularly during the war and since, has held us close to the world. And for the church I mean laymen as well as clergymen, priests and laymen."

"I do not like to hear ministers saying they're when they mean the church. I want to hear men." In concluding his remarks, he said: "We must not get on the benches and throw empty pious platitudes at the world, while the game is being played."

WIFE'S ILLNESS DELAYS LADD FUNERAL

Senator's Body Is to Rest in Washington for Weeks and Then Taken to Dakota

Washington, June 23 (A.P.)—Completion of arrangements for the funeral of Edward F. Ladd, senator from North Dakota, awaited today the arrival of his body from Baltimore, where he died yesterday, and the arrival of his sons and daughters from various cities.

It is expected funeral services will be conducted here tomorrow, after which the body will be placed in a vault to wait until Mrs. Ladd is able to make the trip to North Dakota. Mrs. Ladd and a son and daughter, who were at the bedside, returned to their home on the outskirts of Washington. Mrs. Ladd was seriously affected by her husband's death and it was decided to hold the body here for several weeks pending her recovery.

The senator's death was due to kidney trouble which arose as a complication of neuritis and rheumatism, for which he was being treated. His condition became critical before friends knew of his illness.

RAILROAD EXONERATED IN DISASTER KILLING 48
Washington, N. J., June 22 (A.P.)—A coroner's jury decided that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad was not responsible for the fatal crash at Rockport, N. J., on June 18, in which 48 persons were killed, was caused by the combination of circumstances unavoidable and beyond human control.

The jury returned its verdict exonerating the railroad from all blame after deliberating only 25 minutes.

PRaises AND SIGNS AMERICAN POLICY

Harry W. Marshall, public safety commissioner of Lawrence, in signing the $7,500 travel-accident policy offered by the Boston Evening American to its home delivery subscribers, urged everyone to protect himself and family by taking advantage of this paper's offer. Samuel Nannis, Lawrence distributor of the Boston Evening American, is standing at Commissioner Marshall's left.

Lawrence, June 22.—There's but one chance left open for a person to take in connection with the Boston Evening American's travel-accident insurance and that is by failing to avail himself of the remarkable protection which it offers.

Commissioner of Public Safety Harry W. Marshall made this statement as he sat before his desk in City Hall with a copy of the American's insurance policy open before him.

The Commissioner recounted several incidents which occurred during the thirty years he served in the Lawrence police department. "Times have changed since those days," Mr. Marshall continued. "Travel is now a necessity and the greatest problem which the public has is to face today. With the high wages congested accidents and deaths are occurring daily in spite of the precautions taken by officials."

"With the growth of travel has arisen the necessity for insurance. It is every person's duty to himself and family and community to carry insurance, and I believe that the policy offered at an almost unbelievable figure by the Boston Evening American will aid in serving the public."

My advice is: Avail yourself of this protection immediately.

FIRST 'DIVORCE MILL' TRIAL NEARS END

State Rests in Indictment Involving Thomsen Decree; Witnesses Quit on Lawyers

Providence, June 23 (A.P.)—The State today rested in the trial of Leonard W. Horton, master in chancery, and his law partner, Francis P. Thomsen, indicted for conspiring to utter a false deposition in the divorce case of Genevieve F. Thomsen of New York against Edwin T. Thomsen.

The indictment was one of 25 in divorce and joint indictments in which Horton was named 21 times and Thomsen, nine, following investigation of an alleged "divorce mill."

Depositions in the divorce case of George A. Frank against Dorothy Frank and Florence L. Baird against Vernon Baird were admitted as evidence.

E. George Banks, recalled to the Frank case deposition, signing the Frank case deposition, naming the "divorce transmitters" at the direction of the court.

Charles C. Gilbert, assistant clerk of the Superior Court, identified various papers in the Frank and Baird cases. He also identified the signatures of Horton as master in chancery and Thomsen as attorney of record.

Banks had no direct knowledge of the contents of the papers and that he appeared before Horton and made the answers credited to him in the deposition. He denied living at the address mentioned, and denied knowing the persons involved.

Banks denied that he had signed the name "George Banks" affixed to the deposition in the Baird case.

Shillings and Mexican Dollars

One of the earliest regulations of the Massachusetts bank was this (24th March, 1784):

No. 5.—That the Books and writings of the Bank shall be kept in Mexican Dollars and seventy-second parts thereof each dollar at the rate of six shillings Massachusetts currency.

A complex money, but of a character not unfamiliar today to The First.

TODAY, one of our customers will buy Danish kroner to pay for a shipment of goatskins from Iceland, or French francs to import mahogany from the Gold Coast of Africa.

Other customers will be spending First National shillings for old Sheffield in London—cashed on a First National Traveler's Cheque.

Whatever the product, wherever the country, our familiarity with the currencies of the world can facilitate your foreign business transactions.

And the "Mexican dollar and seventy-second parts thereof" is just another symbol of the progress of Boston banking in 141 years, with The First National in the vanguard at home and abroad.

Indications are that an important shakedown will take place in the enforcement personnel, but Assistant Secretary Andrews, who laid out the plan, declined today to discuss that phase of the reorganization.

The new program has the approval of the President, and in making it public Secretary Mellon expressed his own whole-hearted support.

"Assistant Secretary Andrews," said Mr. Mellon, "has thoroughly analyzed the situation in prohibition law enforcement has submitted a plan for reorganization and policy which he has worked out in collaboration with Commissioner Hays of Internal Revenue, and Prohibition Commissioner Haynes and the heads of the various departments. The plan has met the unqualified approval of the President and of this department."

"It is believed the Federal function in prohibition enforcement is to stop the sources of supply, importation, diversion of legitimately manufactured alcohol, legitimate manufacture and transportation of alcohol and alcoholic beverages."

"Federal law enforcement energies will be directed primarily against the bootleg industry in all phases of its operations. Effort will be made to arrest and develop local enforcement."

Marital law has been promulgated in the suburbs of Shanghai by General Chang Hsueh-Liang. The order forbids public meetings, the issuance of propaganda pamphlets and cartoons and reviews for the condemnation of unauthorized areas and ammunition, the censoring of letters and telegrams and the inspection of incoming and outgoing vessels.

The anti-foreign movement also is rampant at Ningbo, a shipping center. Riots damaged and looted the foreign customs house.

IDENTIFY COREY POSITIVELY IN HOLLIS CASE

Scratches on Face and Mysterious "Roll" Pointed by Police as Murder Proof

The Federal grand jury at Leavenworth was taken into custody, his face bore such as would have been made by finger nail scratches.

After being brought to Boston Police headquarters, Corey was asked about these scratches on his face.

"I got them while shaving," I asserted myself," was the only explanation the man would make. The police declare this explanation will not hold water.

LINKED WITH SLAYING.
The facts which the police have unearthed to link the Worcester man with the slaying of the world-famous mistress, in addition to the marks on his face, include:

1—Positive identification of Corey by Miss Mae Jensen, as the man who accented her in the hall-way on the sixth floor of the Hollis hotel, a few hours before the murder.

2—Corey, the night before the murder, was seen by the hotel manager, Mr. McGraw, who had been called to the Hollis hotel, to pay for a room, but the check was rejected. The day after the murder, Corey was "flushed" and a lawyer's fee and money paid for a worthless check he had passed in Worcester.

3—A cigarette which had been lighted and then hastily extinguished, found under the bed on which the slain woman lay. The cigarette was found in the pocket of a pair of trousers which Corey had in his possession, when arrested.

STOPPED AT HOLLIS.
4—Elimination of every other person known to have been in the Hollis hotel the night of the murder, as a suspect.

Corey was born in Armenia, thirty-four years ago. Following his release from the federal prison in 1923, he went to New York where he lived for a time after which he went to Worcester to live with his father, Richard Corey, alias McCarroll, who conducts a small grocery store.

From time to time Corey came to Boston and he frequently stopped at the Hollis hotel, where he registered under various names. It was a letter sent to the hotel a day or two after the murder which accused him of the slaying. Corey, who was a man of the police, that first put the police on the man's trail.

WAITED FOR VICTIM.
This photograph was authorized from the federal prison authorities and it was this picture which was positively identified by Miss Jensen, the vaudeville performer.

An hour or two before the murder was committed, the man accented Miss Jensen as she walked toward her room on the sixth floor of the hotel.

According to the police theory, after accosting Miss Jensen, the man went to the fourth floor and entered the room of Miss Price, who had not yet returned from the theatre. He concealed himself under the bed, where police say, he lit a cigarette and then hastily extinguished it. It is believed that when the vaudeville mistress entered the room, the man waited until she was undressed and in bed before he attacked her and in the struggle she was suffocated.

NEW RATING BIG HELP TO DISABLED SOLDIERS.
Omaha, Neb., June 22 (A.P.).—The most progressive move by the Veterans' Bureau during the past year has been the completion of a new schedule for compensation ratings, whereby both the present condition of the soldier and his present disability are considered in arriving at his compensable degree. National Commander Frank J. Irwin of New York declared in his annual report to the convention of the Disabled American Veterans today.

The convention was urged to take a positive stand against the proposed merger of the Veterans' Bureau in the Department of Education and Relief.

that the victim of this mysterious park tragedy was his brother's daughter. To make identification doubly sure, George McGraw, Worcester dentist, who is in Boston today for the purpose of viewing dental work in a specialty completed for young Martin.

The Worcester police are satisfied with the identification of the body made by the two sisters. Early today, Robert W. Martin, Jr., father of the missing adolescent, was questioned at the Worcester police station.

"I'm not sure about it being my boy," he told the police, although he had not seen the body. When told that his two daughters had positively identified the body, the father presently was convinced it was his boy.

STILL MYSTERY.
So effort will be made to move the remains, however, until after McGraw has examined the dental work. This identification, police say, will settle the matter beyond any shadow of doubt.

The young wife of Martin has not yet been informed of the identification of the body made by the two sisters, but she will likely be taken to the morgue today.

Martin was employed at the manager of the Rose T. store at Jackson Square, Worcester.

On June 1 he informed members of his family that he was going to Boston to assist in checking up a number of Rose T. stores throughout the Greater Boston district.

LONG IN WATER.
When Martin did not return home last Monday and was still absent on Tuesday, he was reported to the police as missing.

From the disappointed opinion of the body taken from the park pool, it is apparent that the body had been in the water for at least six or seven days.

According to officials of the Rose T. Company, Martin never reported at the Boston office.

Associate Medical Examiner William J. Driskill, who performed an autopsy on the body, declared today that he is utterly unable to reach any conclusions.

"A heavy-caliber bullet went through the left temple and passed through the brain and out the right temple," said the doctor.

"Aside from the fact that the shot was fired while there was still life in the body is about all I can tell at this time."

The finger prints of the victim of the tragedy are being taken today. When Martin enlisted in the navy during the World War his finger prints were filed and are now in the Navy Department files in Washington.

As an extra check on the identification the prints will be compared.

Chief Arthur H. Pratt and Officer James O'Connor of the Worcester police are in charge of the investigation being conducted in Worcester. Both these officers are satisfied the body is that of the missing Worcester store manager.

Present at the hearing were Superintendent of Schools Charles S. Clark, chairman of the school committee Dr. Harry M. Stoddley, School

This time the six accused seniors admitted having even tested the liquor and they asserted that they had seen an intoxicated man outside the school who took it into the building.

WOMAN 'WOLF' GANG LEADER HUNTED

Vineyard, N. J., June 22 (AP).—Police in all towns in southern New Jersey today were hunting for "The Wolf" and her band of thieves. In the mountain offices and stores are carefully guarded for fear of additional raids.

Twelve offices and business places were ransacked here early yesterday and a score of places in the neighboring town of Millville Saturday night. Police found numerous fingerprints and footprints, but other than these have nothing by which they can trace the band, the leader of which left notes reading: "Thanks, will call again," and signed, "The Wolf."

Insults of a woman's heel found on the eve of several of the robberies led the authorities to believe a woman is the leader of the gang. Not content with irritating au-

SUGGESTED DESIGN FOR TRAFFIC BOX

Colonial style with State House dome as basis with supports done in Colonial blue and buff, is the suggestion of Robert Gallagher, Boston attorney, for permanent traffic control boxes in Boston. This type would be in keeping with the architectural style of the city, he believes.

DOMED TYPE OF TRAFFIC STAND SUGGESTED

Boston Lawyer Urges Plat-forms Be Designed on State House Model

"The temporary police stands from which Boston policemen direct traffic are primitive, crude affairs, and not in keeping with Boston's history," said Attorney Robert Gallagher, emphasizing the "bobby-pole" traffic now in use.

"Every time I motor by one of these traffic police stands I feel the putting out my hand for a cone of ice cream, as they remind me of my boyhood days, when 'bobby-poles' was the real thing in juvenile luxuries."

"So think that a city that boasts of such wonderful buildings as the Bulfinch portion of the State House, Trinity Church and Boston Public Library, should have police stands of such a low type littering the streets, seems almost sacrilege."

"Shades of Bulfinch, the great Colonial architect! What would that great designer of beautiful Colonial buildings say if he should walk through Boston streets now and see these 'bobby-poles' from 'a' to 'z'?"

"Although I know but little of architecture I think it would be a good idea to use the State House dome as a model for traffic stands in this city. Nearly all architects who visit our city agree that the State House dome is a thing of unusual beauty. Then why not use the same, in miniature, on top of the police stands. It would be good advertising for the city, too. Visiting motorists would know when they reached Boston from any point of the compass when they passed one of these golden domes."

"The remainder of the stand might consist of an artistic base three or four feet square and six or eight inches high. From this base four artistic fluted columns could rise, one for each corner. An artistic bit of grill work might be placed on the sides at the top, just below the dome. With the exception of the dome the stand could be painted continental blue and buff, the official colors of the city of Boston. While I do not pass as an expert in such matters, this is my suggestion."

Taste this all-food fruit when honey-ripe!

Of course you like your fruits ripe. Peaches, pears, apples, and bananas—all are at their best and sweetest when they are ripe.

When bananas are really ripe, they are better than sweet, better than ripe—they are delicious.

Buy bananas by the dozen. Don't put them in the ice chest. Keep them out upon the table—in the fruit bowl—at the temperature you like.

Let them ripen. When the golden skin is flecked with amber brown, then a banana is really ripe. Then, inside the golden skin, is a creamy, honey-ripe deliciousness that only a ripe banana can have.

Keep a supply of bananas in your home. Serve them ripe. Slice them over cereals.

Serve ripe bananas in salads, or in any of the hundred other ways that bananas can be served, and treat your sense of taste to a new thrill—the deliciousness of a really ripe banana.

HUB STUDENT'S SISTER KILLS HERSELF

Family Lost Fortune in War;
Girl, Facing Poverty,
Takes Poison

Unable to face a life of poverty and struggle after a childhood passed in luxury and ease, Rose Freedman, sister of Joseph Freedman, Boston medical student, committed suicide in New York.

The girl herself was a brilliant medical student at Columbia University, she was twenty-three years old.

She was found dead in bed at her student boarding house, No. 274 East 124th street, New York. Assistant District Attorney Mott said she had taken some powerful poison.

Miss Mollie Libowitz, another Columbia student, found the body when she went to the room to accompany Miss Freedman to classes.

Behind the suicide lies the story of the rise and fall of a capable Jewish family in Austria.

The father of Rose and Jacob, as called by Boston friends, was a wealthy real estate dealer in Vienna, Austria. After the war when the territory was taken from Austria and given to Poland, he lost his lands and his money.

His son and daughter emigrated, determined to get an education and see a future in the land dominated by anti-Semitism. The boy came to Boston, the girl went to New York.

Rose had but little money when she arrived in this country, and that little, it is understood, she invested unwisely, losing it all.

The other main speakers were E. J. M. Brown, Joseph G. Cutler, Edgar Friedman, Frances E. Goldman, Eliza H. Patrick, Margarette Sawyer, Nathan Friedman, Florence Hatcher and Sarah G. Rivlin.

INVOKE OLD LAW TO MAKE MAN 'PAY' ALSO

Jail May Be Lot of Coal Dealer
Co-Defendant in Wealthy
Manufacturer's Divorce

New York, June 23 (A.P.)—Named as a co-defendant, Talbot W. Chambers, coal dealer, has been arrested as the result of his testimony of his relations with Mrs. Thomas H. Symington, who is being sued for divorce by her husband, a wealthy railroad equipment manufacturer.

Chambers faces a penalty of $500 fine or two years imprisonment or both under a law, invoked now for the first time, holding co-defendants responsible for actions revealed in divorce cases.

Edward Hackett, elevator operator in the Symington apartment building, who corroborated Chambers' statements, is held in $500 as a witness.

The startling turn in the trial came when Hackett substantiated Chambers' testimony that the latter had misappropriated himself with Mrs. Symington on two occasions.

Counsel for Mrs. Symington asked Supreme Court Justice Ford, hearing the case, to sit as a committing magistrate and requested the warrant.

Justice Ford recalled that as a State Senator he had introduced the bill in 1919 and Governor Hughes signed it.

The law has never before been invoked in a divorce suit, because testimony corroborative of the admissions of a co-defendant has been held necessary. Hackett gave such corroborative testimony.

Man in Perkins Case to Be Punished

New York, June 23 (A.P.)—Dorothy Perkins, seventeen-year-old sister of Thomas Perkins, her young, unwelcome suitor, is to serve from five to fifteen years in prison, but Michael Connors, elderly married man whose attentions she preferred, is facing the prospect of punishment, too.

Assistant District Attorney McDonald said that an indictment charging criminal assault would be sought against Connors, forty years old, who is serving a sentence for wife-beating.

The beginning of this girl's term at Auburn prison is being held in abeyance pending the shaping of the case against Connors.

PEMBERTON INN OPENS WITH BIG REVUE

The season at Pemberton Inn, that "Miami of the South Shore," popped open in full bloom when Manager Maerls entertained his guests at this cool edge of the Atlantic Ocean with a full-fledged musical comedy revue combining some of the best features of New York's Ziegfeld Follies and the Winter Garden shows.

Dazzling in the variety of costuming, lighting effects, and singing and dancing skits are Gladys Buckridge and Billy Casey, who have been featured in many a Broadway show.

Another feature of the revue is the delicious dancing of Bray and Sheehan. In addition to the effective accompaniment of Ray Stewart's Symphonic Jazz Orchestra throughout the revue, Arthur De Salvo is at the piano for some of Buckridge and Casey's musical numbers.

The revue will be presented every night this week, with the same artists appearing in a concert program next Sunday evening. There will be a complete change of revue and artists next week.

A welcome feature at Pemberton Inn in the late hour returning to Boston from Pemberton at midnight.
